Preamble of the Conference:

The social security system represents one of the most important pillars of determining the social aspect of the state and establishing the constitutional principle of guaranteeing the right to social security, and this is what translates social justice into it. As it expresses the consolidation of the diversity of social protection for the insured, regardless of the nature of their affiliation with the bodies that guarantee them the embodiment of this protection by covering a group of risks that may befall them in their lives in general and their professional lives in particular, by ensuring coverage of various compensations resulting from health condition, ability to work, and loss of earnings.

This system was accompanied by reforms that promoted this system by establishing systems that define the insured's right to protection from illness, disability, old age, maternity, death, and insurance against occupational risks, in order to achieve a sufficient degree of protection for them, through what the various legal frameworks included of the insured's performances, regardless of the nature of their affiliation. The social security system has recorded a qualitative leap through the digitization of the sector by adopting a third-party payment system and proving the insured's status through the electronic card "Al-Shifa", the nature of which was specified in the insurance by Law No. 08-01 amending and supplementing Law No. 83-11, which clarified the legal scope that guarantees the insured to obtain in-kind and cash payments in accordance with what is included in the regulatory texts in this framework. However, the implementation of this system, which guarantees protection for the insured and spares him the hassle of traditional claims for compensation with the Social Security Authority and reduces the price of treatment facilities and treatment-related service providers, depends on the existence of agreements that these individuals can conclude with social security authorities, despite the legislator's provision for the generalization of the recovery card as an implementation of this system with these facilities.

Based on the differences in the legal frameworks for the sponsorship services provided by social security bodies to the insured, disputes may arise related to them. In order to ensure fairness for their parties, the legislator subjected the methods of settling them to Law No. 08-08 relating to disputes in the field of social security.

Objectives of the Conference:

- 1- Highlighting the legal system related to social risks
- 2- Highlighting the nature of the performances provided to the insured socially
- 3- Determining the reality of the payment system by third parties in providing guaranteed risk payments within the framework of social security laws
- 4- Proposing future dimensions of the qualitative application for performances through the third-party payment system and complete digital sponsorship remotely.
- 5- Trying to reach proposals regarding developing the legal system related to social security.

Conference Issue:

Given the reality of the social security system in Algeria, have the various legal texts related to social security met the requirements of the socially insured? What are the implications of digitization for leveraging social risk-related performance?

Conference Themes:

- The first axis: The reality of risk insurance coverage within the framework of social security laws
- Covering social risks (performing social risk care, implementing a payment system by third parties to take care of risks)
 - Bodies responsible for ensuring coverage of social risks
 - Settlement of disputes arising between social security agencies and the insured

The second axis: Prospects for insurance coverage within the framework of insurance laws

- Dimensions of implementing the third-party payment system (research into legal tools to expand the scope of concluding agreements between social security agencies and treatment providers, generalizing the use of the recovery card in the third-party payment system among treatment facilities and providers)
- Highlighting the advantages of digitization and the latest developments related to digital applications to benefit from performances related to social risks.
